To whom it may concern:

Thomas Buckley recently became a volunteer at the Bancroft Memorial Library in Hopedale. I have been impressed in how quickly and thoroughly he has completed projects.

On a very warm Saturday morning he weeded all the outside planting beds. I was extremely happy with the amount of work and thoroughness in cleaning up all around the library. Our large historical garden on the south side of the building never looked better.

In our discussion about his technology pathway, engineering and robotics, I discovered he is involved with a robotics club. We discussed the possibly of him starting one here. He volunteered to create a curriculum for a 6 week session including required products we will need. I was impressed with the detailed curriculum he sent me in just a few days. Since we would need more computers than the library has, in just a couple of weeks, he has reconditioned several laptops for our use. As we discussed publicity for the club, he volunteered to create a flyer and the next day I had a very professional looking flyer to advertise the club.

From working with Thomas, I find he is very knowledgeable about technology and quickly puts ideas into action. He is willing to tackle tasks and make sure they are done well. We are looking forward to the Robotics Programming Club for grades 4-6 he will be leading in a few weeks.

I think he will be successful in the field of study he plans to pursue and will be a successful member of the National Honor Society.

Sincerely,

Ann Fields
